Honesdale Herald.

No Extra Session! lt gives us great pleasure to be able to say that this Black Republican scheme for an extra session has entirely failed. The President will not call one, for reasons which are clearly set forth in a letter from Postmaster General Holt. In reply to, the note of Mr. George Mattingly, postmaster of New York, the Postmaster General informs him that Congress has, for the first time ment, failed to make provision for the department. Had all the members of the next Congress been elected, the President might, on the 4th of March, have called an extra session, and the omission of the late Congress been supwithout disfranchising fifteen of the sovereign States.

This was most unfortunate. There ought to be no time when a full Congress could not be convened, and it is firmly hoped such a state of affairs may never again occur. Had the bill which failed made provision only for the fiscal year commencing on the first of July, there would have been, obviously; no necessity for an extra session. The deficiency on the 18th of June will amount to $1,385,371-nearly $751,000 ment of the principal part within 80

The Postmaster General also makes other statements to show that it would be impossible to convene Congress in time to meet the great bulk of the responsibilities without virtually excluding from Congress the representatives of several of the sovereign States. In the judgment of the President the lesser evil is to wait until the first Monday of December, when Congress will bo full. Contracts can never be renudiated. After the amounts due skall be ascertained, they become debts which must be paid. On this the contractors, if they desire can borrow money, and the lendor pan have no better security. Provision should be made for the payment of the interest, which would amount to less than $100,000.

A system of retrenchment, so far as practicable, is now an imperative daty. By the act of 1858 Congress established St. Paul's and Puget Sound route, sa-tablished in 1855, but not yet in operation. It has been estimated that these require an annual appropriation we in operation until provision shall be made by law.

Hon. J. Glancy Jones and the Res ding Steam Forge.

The Philadelphia Ledger of Monday last, contained the following letter from its Washington correspondent. In which reference is made to the charge brought against the Hon. J. Glancy Jones by the minority of the late Investigating Committee of Congress, of having received pay for the use of his influence in procuring work for the Reading Steam Forge. It will be seen that Mr. Jones positively denies having ever acizing a large fortune out of the operation by ted as agent in the negotiation of contracts with the Forge Company, or that the officers over offered him a price for any such service :

WASHINGTON, March 19, 1859. Mr. Flinn, Navy Agent here, is in the receipt of a letter of J. Glancy Jones, stating that he has very courtoousspent the winter at his country residence, some five miles from the metropolis. In the autumn he will set up his

I recommended them to every one as a good Company, and advised those having work to be done, to invite their proposals at least. I never went behind this. Some of the Company told tracts, but never pretended to offer me a price—they were honorable men and would not do it." This statement of Mr. Jones seems confirmed by the testimony before the Naval Investigating Committee, since that about the sum above named was pany for expenses of Mr. Jones in visiting Washington on three occusions.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, is a constitutional disease, a corruption of the blood, by which this fluid becomes vitiated, weak, and poor. Being in the circulation, is pervades the whole body, and may burst out in disease on any part of it. No organ is free-from its attacks, nor is there one which it may not destroy. The scrofulous taint is variously caused by mercurial disease, low living, disordered or unhealthy food, impure air, filth and filthy habits, the depressing vices, and, shore all, by the venercal infection. Whatever be its origin, it is hereditary in the constitution, descending "from parents to children, unto the third and fourth generation;" indeed, their children." Its effects commence by deposition from the blood of corrupt or ulcerous matter, which, in the lungs, liver, and internal organs, is termed tubercles; in the glands, swellings; and on the surface, eruptions or sores. This foul cor-ruption, which genders in the blood, depresses it purges it; and when taken daily in mod-erate doses, will strengthen and build up which, although not scrolulous in their nature, are still rendered fatal by this taint in the system. Most of the consumption which decimates the human family has its origin directly in this scrofulous contamination; and many destructive diseases of the liver, kidneys, brain, and, indeed, of all the organs, arise from or

The World would be the Better for It. If men cared less for wealth and fame, And less for battle-field and glory; If writ in human hearts, a name Seemed better in a song or story; If men, instead of nursing pride, Would learn to hate and to abbor it-If more relied

On love to guide, The world would be the better for it.

If men dealt less in stocks and lands, And more in bonds and deeds fraternal; If love's work had more willing hands To link this world to the supernal; If men stored up Love's oil and wine, And on bruised human hearts would pour it

If "yours" and "mine" Would once combine, The world would be the better for it. If men would act the play of life, And fewer spoil it in rehearsal; If Bigotry would sheathe its knife

Till good became more universal; If Custom, gray with ages grown, Had fewer blind men to adore it-If talent shone In truticalone, The world would be the better for it.

If men were wise in little chings-Affecting less in all their dealings-If hearts had fewer rusted strings To isolate their kindly feelings; If men, when Wrong beats down the Right, Would strike together and restore it-If Right made Might

The streets are gay and lively too, With many sights both old and new; The eld-time custom holds its sway-For this is Moving Day.

Confusion reigns all over town-The little children get knocked down-Cross drivers yell "get out of the way"-But such is Moving Day.

'Way at the "other end" of town, Some lary chaps have laid them down; And as cakes disappear, they say, "Oh! well, 'tis Moving Day."

Grand dinners everywhere appear, Of dainties cheap, and dainties dear ; All else but eating put away-For this is Moving Day.

Preserves and pickles, pies and cakes, Ice-cream (?) and oysters (?) now hold sway For this is Moving Day.

The dishes broken-what a muss-"Save me from Moving Day."

When all is done and put to right, How many pass a weary night, And, tossing on their couches, say, O! dreadful Moving Day.

And, journeying on her endless way, Ne'er dreams of Moving Day. Now, ye delinquents one and all.

At Mr. Stable's office call, And all your old subscriptions pay, And let your generous printer say, Of pleasant Moving Day, at the Prothonotary's Office, in Gettysburg. April, 5 1858. Scrofula, or King's Evil, is a constitutional disease, a corruption of the blood, by which this fluid becomes vitiated, blood, by which this fluid becomes vitiated, weak, and poor. Being in the circulation, it pervades the whole body, and may burst out in disease on any part of it. No organ is free from its attacks, nor is there one which it may not destroy. The scrofulous taint is variously caused by mercurial disease, low living, disordered or unhealthy food, impure air, fifth and fifthy habits, the depressing vices, and, above all, by the venercal infection. Whatever be its origin, it is hereditary in the constitution, descending "from parents to children.
